ArgO-EMR Seminars
The Anthropology Research Group at Oxford on Eastern Medicines and Religions

The Personification of Pain in different Religions:
Engaging with Religious Texts through Medical Anthropology
Pauling Centre, 58a Banbury Road, 5.00pm-6.30pm, Wednesdays, Hilary Term 2019

Week 1: Wednesday 16\textsuperscript{th} January 2019
Expression of Physical Pain in Ancient Mesopotamian Texts
Parsa Daneshmand, University of Oxford

Week 2: Wednesday 23\textsuperscript{rd} January 2019
Expressing Pain in the Internal Organs: Examples from the Psalms and Job
Katherine Southwood, University of Oxford

Week 3: Wednesday 30\textsuperscript{th} January 2019
Fear of Affliction:
Etiologies for Penetrating Pain in the Hebrew Bible and Cognate Literature
Ingrid Lilly, Pacific School of Religion, Archaeology, and Hebrew Bible, CA

Week 5: Wednesday 13\textsuperscript{th} February 2019
Suffering and Spiritual Exercises in Modern Chinese Piety Books
Vincent Gossaert, Ecole Pratique des Haute Etudes, PSL, Paris

Week 7: Wednesday 27\textsuperscript{th} February 2019
Representing Pain in Medieval Japan: The Scrolls of Afflictions
Benedetta Lomi, University of Bristol

Convenors: Katherine Southwood, katherine.southwood@theology.ox.ac.uk
Elisabeth Hsu, elisabeth.hsu@anthro.ox.ac.uk