Is a common reading possible across languages, cultures, disciplines? Under what terms may texts be compared and shared while acknowledging their differences? Revisiting Hartman and Budick’s 1986 volume Midrash and Literature, this conference will examine the continued relevance of the hermeneutical vocabulary by which we bring texts together, but also consider the possibility of new models and approaches. Bringing together scholars whose work and reading practices move between the ancient and modern, we will address the philological, compositional and literary implications of a common reading.

Sunday, 1 December

Session 1: 11:30—13:30
Chair: Tobias Reinhardt (Corpus Christi)
11:30-12:30 Hindy Najman (Oriel): 'Hermeneutics as Philology: reading practices in ancient Judaism'
12:30-13:30 Yelena Baraz (Princeton): 'Fragmenting the Tradition, Rethinking intertextuality'
13:30-14:30 Lunch Break

Session 2: 14:30—16:30
Chair: Felix Budelmann (Magdalen)
14:30-15:30 Constanze Güthenke (Corpus) and Colin King (Sussex): 'Why Read Boeckh’s Encyclopaedia Now? Revisiting a 19th Century Programme on Philology'
15:30-16:30 Kirk Wetters (Yale): 'The Law of the Series and the Crux of Causation: Paul Kammerer’s Anomalies'
16:30-17:00 Break

Session 3: 16:30—18:30
Chair: Hindy Najman (Oriel)
17:00-18:00 Yael Fisch (Oriel): ‘Dismembered Bible - Rethinking Midrash and Intertextuality'
18:00-19:00 Adriana Jacobs, (St. Cross): ‘Poetry as Afterlife’
19:00-19:30 Reception
Monday 2 December

Session 4: 9:00–10:30
Chair: Adriana Jacobs (St. Cross)
9:00-09:30  Rebekah Van Sant-Clark (Theology): 'Making the Desert Bloom: Between Isaiah and Yehuda Amichai’s ‘Jews in the Land of Israel’"
09:30-10:00  Alexander McCarron (Oriental Studies): 'Enoch at Sinai and the Interpretation of Scripture in the Book of the Watchers 1:3b-5'
10:00-10:30  Olga Fabrikant-Burke (Cambridge Divinity School): 'Historical Nemeses or Exegetical Friends?: Scribal Hermeneutics and the Invention of False Prophecy of Peace'
10:30-11:00  Break

Session 5: 11:00—12:30
Chair: Yael Fisch (Oriel)
11:00-11:30  Elizabeth Stell (Theology): 'Interpretations Sought or Received: Dream, Prayer, and Understanding in Early Jewish Texts'
11:00-11:30  Hans Decker (Theology): Retelling Proverbs: Narrative as a New Hermeneutical Model
11:30-11:45  Break
11:45-12:15  Annie Calderbank (Theology): 'Hellenistic Jewish Hermeneutics and Midrash in the Exagoge of Ezekiel'
12:15-12:45  Gal Sela (Haifa): ‘Holy Tapestry: Rav Judah and the Cosmic Hunger’
12:45-14:00  Lunch

Session 6: 14:00—16:00
Chair: Laura Quick (Worcester)
14:00-15:00  Nathan MacDonald (Cambridge):‘Reading Backwards and Forwards: Revising intertextuality in the Pentateuch and Beyond’
15:00-16:00  Yosefa Raz (Haifa): 'Julius Wellhausen and Ezekiel’s Weakness'
16:00-16:30  Break
Session 7: 16:30—18:30

Chair: Andrea Schatz (KCL)

16:30-17:30  Daniel Weidner (ZFL Berlin): ‘Biblical hermeneutics and German Enlightenment’

Chair: Hindy Najman (Oriel)

17:30-18:00  Sanford Budick (Hebrew University Jerusalem, Emeritus): Closing Remarks

18:00-19:00  Reception